

Press Release

AFT Holdings, Inc announced today it has concluded an initial investment into Flowvella, a technology company founded by Brent Brookler that is in the initial stages of introducing presentation software.

“The Flowvella team had been building mobile apps for clients like CBS News and Beyonce., key projects being 60 Minutes, 48 Hours, CNET News and several other iPad, iPhone and Android apps for big brands. With specializing content driven, interactive, apps and realized they were building an engaging platform to present ideas, products and stories with Flowvella to create a new business focusing on the larger opportunity to build the best possible product in this growing space”

AFT Holdings, Chairman and General partner, J. Douglas Hines “this investment fits our core principal to invest in people, vision and long term market opportunity to create future products for the future. We are pleased and excited to support Mr. Brookler and the Flowvella team in creating this future.”

This the third Investment of AFT Holdings in the past months, Loma Linda Foods, an Iconic brand in the protein alternative space, Stonewall Kitchens and now with Flowvella.